When planning your garden here are a few important points to consider:

- Function - what do you want to use your garden for?
- Do you want to include pergolas paths and patios?
- Does it need to be child friendly?
- What style of garden do you require - traditional or modern?
- Low maintenance? are you here to maintain your garden?
- Planting - think about the colours, sizes and numbers of plants.
- What is your budget? Are you clear what is included in the price?
- Do you want outside lighting?
- What about irrigation?
- Mature planting? Hard Landscaping

Hard landscaping covers a variety of construction works, from digging out and base preparation which is normally hardcore, or Zahorra (in Spanish) which provides a good solid base for paving, driveways, gravel areas etc etc… This also covers foundation work for walls and edgings and also for the laying of patios The idea of the majority of hard landscaping is to provide a solid surface to walk, drive or play onSoft Landscaping

This covers the lighter side of landscaping works from soil preparation or replacing, and planting out beds and borders. This also covers grass works from seeding to turfing lawns. This also covers garden maintenance such as lawn care. Groundforce PLUS a reputable company using only skilled trades people.
